

My Beautiful Gifts : Saturday, 3 May 2014 ~

On arrival, Ellen gave me the most beautiful gifts.

A fabric project bag and a wonderful set of Shaker Boxes.

One can never have too many project bags, especially as I never stitch one piece of needlework at a time but have many pieces in varying stages of completion.

Here is a photo of my lovely project bag ~

Isn't this just lovely?

A good size as it holds an A4 sized design.

But isn't the fabric design just awesome!

Very apt for someone who has grown to love and appreciate samplers.

And here is a photo of my Shaker Boxes -

I LOVE shaker boxes.

And have done so ever since I first saw them.

Note my new little kitten - Tabitha - beside the boxes.

More about her in a later blog.

Whilst on the subject of gifts, my friend and faithful, needlework customer, Clare Campbell, was unable to attend Ellen's class, but she made the loveliest of gestures. She embroidered and sewed two items for Ellen - a project / needlework roll with a matching little carry bag for needlework accessories. Ellen was absolutely delighted with them. She has written about these gifts in her blog.

Go to Ellen's blog -

www.withmyneedle-ellen.blogspot.com

OLDER POSTS : 15 APRIL 2014

That's all for the moment.

